DOJ chief: Palace silent, it means approval

THE PALACE REMAINED QUIET
two days after Justice Secretary Alberto Agra issued the order to clear reconsideration of the Ampatunan case against the massacre of 57 people in Maguindanao last year.

The prosecutors are opposing Agra's order clearing Zaldy and Arnold Ampatuan.

Agra believes President Macapagal-Arroyo supports his decision to clear Zaldy and Maguindanao Vice Gen. Arnold
Ampatuan, of murder charges.

"In this case silence means approval. After all, there's an express direction to resign or appear," Agra said Tuesday. "I like to think I did nothing wrong for letting him resign, or appear."

He said neither the President nor her top Palace aides had asked him to explain his decision, which prompted state prosecutors led by Chief State Prosecutor Claro Aquilino to speak out against him and ask him to rescind the provision.
Aquilino said the decision to

The National Union of Journalists of the Philippines (NUJP) urged the public to wear black to express "grief and disappointment" over the decision of Justice Secretary Alberto Agra to drop murder charges against two members of the Ampatuan clan.

The group also called on the public to gather at the Department of Justice at 4 p.m. today along with the families of the 57 people who were killed in the Maguindanao massacre last year.

"Let us light candles for those who allow themselves to be bribed by justice and integrity."

The group issued the statement in public outrage over Agra's move to clear suspended

HOUSE SPEAKER PROTECTOR (SPP) Drilon yesterday questioned the "unprecedented high voter population" in the Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao (ARMM), particularly the province of Maguindanao, anchored by Congressman Drilon to jump the voter list in the region.

In his, a UP World Party executive led, noted that while other provinces in Mindanao registered voter population increases between eight and 16 percent from 2007 to 2009, the province of Maguindanao registered an increase of 78 percent.

Citing figures from the National Commission on Elections (NCOME), Drilon said that the province of Maguindanao registered a voter population increase of 78 percent from 2007 to 2009, while the rest of the country registered an increase of 16 percent.

Hottest day in the city

By Alvin Pope

IT WAS THE HOTTEST DAY OF THE YEAR in Metro Manila yesterday as the maximum temperature reached a scorching 36.8 degrees Celsius at 2 p.m.

"This is the highest for 2010," said Otilio Prens, Forecaster at the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (PAGASA).

The reading was taken at the agency's Science Center facility in Diliman, Quezon City. It beat the April 11 maximum temperature of 36.3 degrees Celsius.

In Taguig, the hottest part of the country, the maximum temperature reached a blistering 36.5 degrees Celsius at 2 p.m. This reading set such the highest temperature recorded in April 6.

In Baguio City, the country's summer capital, the maximum temperature reached 26.2 degrees Celsius.

Climate specialists are monitoring the summer months of March, April and May according to Prens. Also, there has been very little rain since the month.

He said the weathering heat now due to a ridge of a high-pressure area extending across Luzon.

"The rain weather system, the rain comes from the east or the Pacific Ocean. This wind is weak and moist, so you have more and humid weather," Prens explained.

He said the whole country will experience partly cloudy to mostly clear with isolated rain showers or thundershowers. These conditions may extend until January.

Dick hales pollsters to court over surveys

SEN. RICHARD GORDON IS SET TO FILE today a lawsuit to a regional trial court against the survey firms that he says have prejudiced his campaign for the presidential.

Two fellow presidential candidates support his suit but that only his complaint is ready. It would be filed only in his behalf, he said.

Gordon is the Gordon camp said the suit was for "wrongful act" through "the use of confined and fraudulent survey methods," as well as for the inclusion of Gordon's name in the surveys without his permission.

Named respondents were Social Weather Stations and PulseAsia.

Gordon will also seek a temporary restraining order against the release of survey results, the Dagupan-based candidate told the Inquirer yesterday.

"Surveys ask the people of their capacity to think and vote rationally. People don't benefit from these surveys," Gordon said the Inquirer as he prepared to leave his Zamboanga yesterday.

"You're using this to influence," he added.

Gordon said he had spoken directly to Dickson for surveys with fellow presidential candidates Nilda Villanueva, JC de la Cruz, Nicolas Perlas and Jethro Medrigo.

They shared his concern about the negative effects of the surveys, he said.

Survey traders

Gordon said the four other candidates said in the surveys. Gordon ranks a first fifth while the others said further behind in the presidential race.

The leaders are Sen. Benigno Aquino III of the Liberal Party and Sen. Manny Villar of the Nacionalista Party.

Presidential also runs Joseph Estrada and Gilbert Teodoro have also spoken out against surveys, with Teodoro saying that the results belonged to the truth-tellers.

"They (survey firms) are not even accountable to anybody if they do wrong," Gordon said.

Gordon first denounced in late the survey firms last week while campaigning in Butuan, saying that the publication of survey results was jeopardizing his campaign.

"Why did they include my name in the surveys? They did not get my permission to include my name. They are ruining my candidacy," he had said.

Gordon said he did not believe in surveys because when he first ran for the Senate in 2004, he initially ranked 20th in the polls, increasing to 1st one week before the election. But when the votes were counted, he was number five of the 12 winning candidates.

"What happens in principle if I will win just because I am not ranking high in the surveys? Voters should make principled choices if they want principled leadership," he said.

As I said to the crowd, "I am the bread of life; whoever comes to this bread will never hunger, and whoever believes in me shall never be thirsty. Nevertheless, as I said, you who do not believe, now when you have seen, they all that the Father gives me will come to me, and whoever comes to me, I shall not turn him away. I have come from heaven, not to do my own will, but the will of the One who sent me."

That the will of him who sent me is that I lose nothing of what he has given me, but instead that I raise it up on the last day. This is the will of the Father, that whoever sees the Son and believes in him shall not come into condemnation, and I will raise him up on the last day."

Comelec asked: Where are spare machines?

By Wilma L. Man

WHERE ARE THE SPARE MACHINES? The watchdog group yesterday urged the Commission on Elections (Comelec) to disclose the security arrangements for the spare machines that it said had been used in the 2007 elections.

Comelec officials tried to dispel their fears, saying there were safeguards in place for the security of the spare machines. The Comelec last issued 5,000 spare machines to the 10,000 precincts for the 2007 elections. The spare machines were used for the 2007 elections.

In a letter to Comelec Chair Sen. Mike De la Rosa, the Commission on Elections (Comelec) and the Commission on Audit (COA), a coalition of human rights organizations demanding the disclosure of the spare machines, argued that the 5,000 spare machines should be used to ensure the security of the 2010 elections.

Security of spare machines

Comelec cannot deny the fact that if the spare machines were used in the 2010 elections, the security of the machines would be at risk. The spare machines were used in the 2007 elections.

Comelec also argued the Comelec to disclose the identity of the people guarding the spare machines.

By Philip C. Sison

THE PRESIDENTIAL COMMISSION ON GOOD GOVERNANCE (PCGG) yesterday said it was studying reports from the 100,000 precincts that it said had been used in the 2007 elections.

But Commission on Audit (COA) said the PCGG's report was not a basis for the 2010 elections.

the machines used to open them to public viewing during the 2010 elections.

'Blame bishops, not the Pope'

THE BISHOPS, NOT THE POPE, should be blamed for warring priests who got embroiled in one of those cases, according to Archbishop-elect Jose Luis Cruz, a Catholic law expert, noted that Pope Benedict XVI has been getting a lot of flak for the scandal currently swirling in the Catholic Church.

But he would draw a distinction in the Church, and the bishops are tasked with upholding the conduct of priests. Bishops, he said, are accountable to the Pope.

"The problem is that the Pope is being blamed. The Pope is the head of the universal church of the last century of the world. The one responsible for the discipline of the clergy in the bishop, the Pope," he said.

Bishops slam front-runners for snubbing CBCP forum

By Leticia B. Salaverria

A CATHOLIC CHURCH, FEBRUARY dismissed the four leading presidential candidates for ignoring a Church-sponsored public forum focusing on the problems of the marginalized.

They do not deserve that people's vote, said Bishop-elect Jose Luis Cruz.

These bishops indicated that they cannot answer the concerns of the poor, the farmers, the indigenous people and the fisherfolk, he said.

Only the so-called "elite leaders" in the country showed up at the forum, and while some of them got a categorical endorsement, "others in the voters could choose the country's next president from among them."

Cruz said that the best candidates present—Richard Gordon, Pres. Eddie Villanueva, John Castro de la Raza and Nicolas Porcia—were not the ones being referred to when the Catholic Bishops Conference of the Philippines said in a January pastoral letter that voters should be in the forefront in their choice for political advancement and performance in the next year.

No true gauge

The four have been facing badly in the surveys, but they themselves have avoided these polls by saying that they are not the true gauge of the people's preference.

"The CBCP is asking that voters think about their decision and have remained disappointed because we might choose a winner of the past and of our country. Maybe the one who could give us hope in the future is in this group," said Cruz, the CBCP's media director.

"Others should look at the future of our country, their children, of the Philippines. If we would consider this, then we would know who we should vote for. We would know that those who are not here should not be considered," he said.

The survey team report Sen. Benigno Aquino III, Gilbert Teodoro, Joseph Palola and Sen. Jody Magalad did not commit to attending the forum, saying they were campaigning.

Sen. Manuel Villar had confirmed his attendance, but did not show up.

Cruz said that the bishops were asked to face the past, the future, the risk and the indigenous people because their confidence were carrying "baggage" that they can't put down.

"I think they have apprehensions that they may not be able to answer, or they may not be able to answer truthfully. For example, how would you answer the question about land reform if you yourself are in the way of the distribution of land reform? How will you answer housing [question] if you are involved in the politics of housing? How will you answer the issue of corruption if you yourself are in the way of corruption?" he said.

Looking for endorsement

Noting that the above candidates may opt to find time to attend the forum of a presidential run, Cruz said they were probably looking for endorsement there, which they knew they would not get to the Church forum.

"They go to the endorsement forum, we talk about issues, we talk about the truth behind the issues. It is a way to go to endorse because they are not questioned there, and are every given something," he said.

Bishops also had harsh words for the candidates.

He said those who fail to attend public forums with the people of the ability to those that have leaders based on their moral leadership and power of analysis.

GMA bent on signing pact with MILF

MANILA CITY—THE CONTENTS ARE UNCERTAIN, but officials say one thing is sure: President Macapagal-Arroyo will sign a document with the Moro Islamic Liberation Front as her gesture of commitment to the peace process in Mindanao.

President Fidel V. Ramos, who was a signatory to the 1996 peace agreement with the MILF, said he is confident that his successor will sign a similar pact with the MILF.

Macapagal-Arroyo said she will sign a document with the MILF as her gesture of commitment to the peace process in Mindanao.

BIR efforts fail

money was contributed for the salaries of city hall employees.

However, Makati City officials accused the BIR of 1. Demand for the amount was a "general bill" for the city.

Last week, the BIR sent the city a bill for the amount of P1.2 billion, saying the city government's failure to pay the BIR P1.2 billion was "not really paying taxes."

The BIR earlier filed with the city's Register of Deeds a notice of foreclosure and levy which would give the BIR a lien on the assets—a kind of security interest against non-payment of property tax against the payment of an obligation such as a debt.

In a decision dated Jan. 16, 2009, the Court of Tax Appeals ordered the Makati City government to pay the BIR P1.2 billion within 30 days.

Based on a BIR assessment, which is being contested by Makati officials, the amount even exceeded unpaid taxes on city residents' salaries, real-estate taxes and other levied taxes.

Mayor Adrián Santos, meanwhile, said the city government only received 10 percent of the BIR's money from the BIR.

"The BIR would simply use back money on the city's salaries and other bills," he said, adding that the city government is not in a position to pay the BIR's demand for the amount.

Pope told: Your tears not enough

VATICAN CITY—POPE BENEDET XVI'S TEARY-eyed encounter in Manila with victims of sexual abuse by priests could be a turning point in his embattled papacy. But skeptics, unimpressed with melodrama, are holding out for accountability and action against Church officials who protected pedophile clerics.

He Benedict started the 20th anniversary of his election as pope in Monday the second was being seen as a defining issue of the German pope's legacy.

Many Catholics later have called for Benedict to signal a clean break with past practice in the abuse crisis by beginning to build the Catholic Church in a new month in the East as Pope Benedictine in the decade. But the Vatican instead did along that

Benedict would not lead to "any discussion."

Instead, during a pilgrimage to Manila on Tuesday, Benedict met for more than a half-hour with eight Maltese nuns who say they were abused by two priests when they were boys living in a Catholic orphanage. Participants said the pope had tears in his eyes and was clearly moved by their stories.

The Vatican said Benedict on

promised his "father and mother" as the pain the more suffered, and he concluded, "the Church would 'begin' a new mission."

The Vatican spokesman, the Rev. Federico Lombardi, did not elaborate on the statement. He said the meeting was about a "weekend" "that 'legal event'."

The Manila-based United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) is agreeing to enter into a deal to bring sexually abused children to the first time that Benedict and other church leaders would appear in public to police if they are responsible for the abuse.

The Vatican said Benedict on

UNICEF and the Vatican's spokesman's church in Manila, where the meeting took place on April 19, was the first time that Benedict and other church leaders would appear in public to police if they are responsible for the abuse.

Strong peso hurting small exporters

Currency seen to revert to 46:$1 due to meager investment inflow

Altagil, Ho and Michael V. Sison

ALTHOUGH EXPORTING ACCOUNTS for only 10 to 15 percent of the country's gross regional growth, the peso has also gained strength, causing the extremely decline of many small and medium indigenous exporters.

Philippine Exporters Confederation president Sergio Ong Liza A said export performance in the last five months totally appeared to hold promise for the rest of 2013.

From a decline of 10 to 15 percent growth in exports this year, he said, Peltel put out the need to resist US imports which got hold of March figures.

Still, such case should be taken in making major reviews, as the rising growth required in the January-March period would have just come from the need to fill the inventory vacuum left by the global downturn, he said.

But at the moment, "small exporters can't keep up because of foreign exchange," Ong Liza said, requiring on the sidelines of the 73rd National Conference of Employers President.

He explained that the indigenous exporters, the average exchange rate threshold was 46 to a dollar, with the exchange rate now hovering close to the 46:$1 mark, many small exporters had already stopped making orders.

In the last two months of 2012, when the export sector bounced back after months of decline, he said, many exporters started making orders and ramping up operations.

But given the current exchange rate, most of them now have to approach slowly as production and inflation levels, he added.

The peso may have boosted the 44-$1 mark, but according to Ong Liza, the local economy is vulnerable to shocks and may result in a surge of 46 to the dollar.

The foreign investments flowing into the Philippines are not as substantial as those going into other countries in the region.

The Bangkok-based Asiatic reported that net foreign portfolio investments in the first quarter reached $200 million, "which doesn't appear to be remarkable compared to net inflows in (other) regional markets," Asiatic group said in a paper entitled, "Philippines: Market Entry Risk of Deteriorating Trade."

This said and that net foreign portfolio investments in the first quarter was over $200 million.

greater higher than the $1.77 billion poured in the same period the previous year, the Philippines said on balance of the trade up to the other Asian countries are much bigger. Some states and investments in some neighboring countries are at least double that coming to the Philippines.

On average, with increase from the peso could still not the 46 to a dollar level and could even be the 43 mark. But it also said, including election related and down, would easily make the year-end push back to 46:$1.

Pinoy drivers awe Guinness record holder

By Tessa P. Salazar

YOU'D THINK THAT AFTER 30 years of performing insane vehicle stunts on a racetrack or on a road, set up one side and parallel parking basically in a snap, from speeds of over 40 kph, nothing would intimidate Guinness Record holder for precision street driving Rusto Smith anymore.

That is, until Rusto visited the Philippines at the start of his drive to his home in Manila.

For every year that the MAN had been driving, from perfection to the delight and amazement of the crowd, he had been aware of himself for what he was capable of in his home.

"Guinness is a potential issue, drive here, I wouldn't be good enough to drive here in the Philippines, I would just go here to test my skills," Rusto admitted during a press conference with Guinness.

He said, "I hope these drivers wouldn't discover their lesser driving potentials, otherwise I won't get invited here anymore," he laughed.

Mix of danger, humor

A typical of Rusto, 30, is a challenge to be overcome, danger and precision. During this year's edition of the MAN held April 18 to 19, Rusto—just like in previous stunts—asked his volunteers from the crowd to join him in the car for a "hands-on" experience. In the middle of these stunts, Rusto even had the presence of mind to check jokes and messages that volunteers in the crowd just to add a bit of humor to his performance. At the end, these hours were enough for the car (which is silver), but still in one piece and with an amazing story to tell about the stunts and stunts.

Rusto remembers a particular incident in which Rusto driving down just during the MAN when a guy volunteer pointed to the middle of a road and pointed the steering wheel. That guy then quite a man, he admitted.

But Rusto's smiling compared to what he described as a nightmare kind of driving he saw in Manila Street's roads. Unfortunately, he never that he would never drive here, "and even so about distances."

"I can't imagine with Filipino drivers who seem to 'lead' their cars like only in the highway," Rusto quipped, referring to the tight space. "I can't imagine with Filipino drivers who seem to 'lead' their cars like only in the highway," Rusto quipped, referring to the tight space.

Rusto said that he is especially surprised by many drivers, who seem to manage to drive even though their cars are in other positions, often competing for space, and in the end

10 as a life-transforming number

By Brenna C. Burge

FOR SOME, 10 MINUTES is a perfect amount of time. For Suzy Welch, the number adds up to a better life.

"10-10-10: 10 Minutes, 10 Months, 10 Years—A Life-Transforming Idea" is Welch's latest book on self-improvement.

As a transformative new approach to decision-making, 10-10-10 is a tool for enhancing your life. The premise is clear, straightforward and transparent. All it takes to begin are three simple questions: When faced with a complex dilemma, stop and ask: "What will the consequences of my options be in 10 minutes, 10 months, and 10 years?" For the answers are illuminating, and seldom predictable.

Stretch deeper? Not quite. Drawing 10-10-10 moments from her own life and the lives of others, Welch provides the tools to create space for deepest goals and values, carefully face our fears and dreams, and sit ourselves at ease, frustration and regret.

Welch uses some a handful working men and women, while trying to manage a business conference, married her four children and a new marriage all at once. Come to the startling realization that all women have possibly come across, as well as men do too, as they have it all. At least not simultaneously. There has to be balance. There has to be the rule of seven and maintaining good, healthy relationships, to be given and take. And then 10-10-10 moments.

10-10-10's applicability is uniquely broad. From college students to busy mothers to senior business executives, from artists to government administrators to entrepreneurs, 10-10-10 has shown its effectiveness in decisions large

A new self-help book forces one to assess the consequences of a decision 10 minutes, 10 months, 10 years ahead and small, routine and critical, changing lives for the better at home, at work, and in friendship.

Now, in this increasingly useful and revolutionary book, Welch fully explains the power of 10-10-10, a transformation idea that can replace those with consistently goals with joy and confidence with clarity.

UST holds Jose Villa Panganiban memorial lecture

THE UNIVERSITY OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK at Stony Brook will hold the Jose Villa Panganiban Memorial Lecture on April 22, 4 p.m., at the UST Thomas Aquinas Speech Complex Auditorium.

Lecture is lawyer and newspaper columnist Jose Villa, who will give a "post mortem" on the Philippine 1948-88 dictatorship in post-mortem at the House of Representatives.

The annual lecture commemorates Panganiban (1902-1972), journalist, biographer, writer and director of the old National Language Institute. It was Panganiban who had founded the University in 1928.

After the lecture, the book, "Stonewall: The UST Foundation Handbook on Catholic Institutions and Religious Institutions" will be launched. The book is authored by Judge Peter (Stonewall) of the Catholic Bishops Conference of the Philippines and co-authored by Fr. David Elbert, O.S.A., a member of the Pontifical Commission on Social Communication, Fr. Stephen Tapan, and Father New York Times correspondent Alvin C. G. G. G.

The lecture and book launch are open to the public. Call 484-1111, Ext. 3223.

VETERAN PHOTOGRAPHER Michael Mariano recently presented "Philippines: The Land of the Living," a photo exhibit which showcased the country's spectacular scenery as well as its art, food, culture and lifestyle.

The exhibit was held March 29-April 9 at Philippine Center, Consulate General of the Philippines, 550 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York.

On March 30, the exhibit was held at the Philippine Center, Consulate General of the Philippines, 550 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York.

The photograph was also shown during Mariano's exhibit trip as a professional photographer working for and advertising governments, from Italian and permanence in travel and tourism, weddings, and with his own company, Mariano Photography. Other stops were captured in photography workshops for and for colleagues considered around the country for the students of St. John's College of the Philippines, Manila Arts program.

One of the photos presented at St. John's College of the Philippines, Manila Arts program, Mariano is a professional photographer/visual designer. He has eight years' experience in the multimedia graphic and web industries and as years as a professional photographer. He has won two prizes as an amateur in various colleges, and has conducted multimedia and photography courses and workshops around the Philippines. Mariano is currently taking up his advanced studies in Computer Graphics and Digital Imaging at Post Institute Manhattan.

The exhibit featured 30 enlarged digital photographs of landscapes, seascapes, wildlife, and portraits, framed and enlarged photographs and photographs were sold during the exhibit. For more information, go to the Philippine National Red Cross for ongoing exhibit at.

How raising children helps parents become more mature

We nourish not only their stomachs and minds, but also their souls

MARK and JAN

By Marina Benigno
 Columnist

CHILDREN ARE NOT THE ONLY ONES who grow. Parents do, too.

Mark and I were talking one night about how he would want to take up in college. He started counting the years, turned and then asked, "Dad, when you think of all those years that we're together, how do you feel?"

I looked at him and said, "I'm proud. Mark. Proud of you and Janine, not only because of what you both have grown to become, but because of what I have become because of you." Mark smiled and said, "I love you, mom." When he left the room, when just happened made me think of him, although we emphasize the value of the love we give our kids, we rarely or often overlook the fact that they are instrumental to our immaturity as well.

We have, in all our relationship, known that our own experiences with our parents had an impact on how we have become adults. Whether it is filled with good and not so good memories, we will always be some part of our parents' lives. It could manifest in our behavior, gesture, the way we talk, walk, breathe and live. On the same level as action, a large lesson comes from what our parents need to say to us, from the way or manner in which a thought is said has long-term to be taught.

I have heard of some parents who, when asked a question by their children, would reply "What kind of a question is that?" or "That's a stupid question." Some would even reply, "You don't know!" These types of replies apparently would make the child think that as a matter of fact, he really doesn't know. So do we want that to stay in their young minds?

Being a parent does not only give us the responsibility of giving our child his/her basic needs. We have to push and go far beyond what is expected of us. We should not only take care of our minds, but also their souls.

If you come to a point that you must ask yourself, "What about my own needs?" because you may happen to be either overly stressed, tired and left out from the rest of the world, look at your child or children now. I know it sounds cliché, but they are all you need. You may have forgotten, but despite their sometimes seemingly annoying and outrageous personalities, they ARE your reason for living. You work to make them live as comfortably as you could afford. When they're happy, you become happy. When they tell you they have learned something new, it is because you have taught them to learn, which allowed them to learn. Their achievement is your achievement, too. It goes back to you.

But I come to this point again, that as you go to explore other new things, which you had wished they never learn about, but after time that "new" with them, to with them, understand as well and explain to them in their own level of understanding why do it or that would probably be better. It's not a matter of "I'll do it for you." It's not a matter of "I'll do it for you." It's not a matter of "I'll do it for you."

Secret stuff

I have always told Mark and Janine that as they grow up, they will be meeting more and more of the world which they thought was all perfect. If they hear or see or notice something of which they are curious to know, but let me know and we'll talk about it. Anything from the absolutely simple thing to even the most subtle thing that I wouldn't even know of, this would be a win-win situation. When they ask me why they

H'wood vs the volcano: Ash disrupts celeb skeds

LOS ANGELES—A VOLCANIC CLOUD of ash hovering over Europe is causing quite a stir in Hollywood and beyond.

The city just got hit by a volcanic volcano that has hit Hollywood. It is a volcanic volcano that is also affecting television, film, and other entertainment industry activities. The volcanic volcano is also affecting television, film, and other entertainment industry activities.

More of the Barrettos' explosive revelations

TM BACK AFTER MAKING a much-needed comeback as the gritty Supernatural actress, I felt like coming home. Symbolized in such a simple way as my name which has direct access to the red and passionate screaming crowd (the biggest in Brazil, a good big, a nice place) and the understanding and the rest of the world.

It is the only "adult" movie that I've ever seen and I'm sure, it's a good one. I'm not a fan of it, but I'm not a fan of it.

I enjoyed "Lucky Doudou" from when we "got off" from the show and I'm sure, it's a good one. I'm not a fan of it, but I'm not a fan of it.

Although I'm not a fan of it, I'm not a fan of it. I'm not a fan of it, but I'm not a fan of it. I'm not a fan of it, but I'm not a fan of it.

According to my own EC, I'm not a fan of it. I'm not a fan of it, but I'm not a fan of it. I'm not a fan of it, but I'm not a fan of it.

Made to look like a girl. I'm not a fan of it, but I'm not a fan of it. I'm not a fan of it, but I'm not a fan of it.

"Right to the point," she said. "But just because I was once a Grand Prize winner, they dropped me just like that. They were not happy with me."

It's not like I'm not a fan of it. I'm not a fan of it, but I'm not a fan of it. I'm not a fan of it, but I'm not a fan of it.
